An Object of Sympathy.

The sojourn at Dover, Eng., of the eloping heiress, Mile. the Countess Mercedes Campos and her adventurously lover is attracting much attention, and her repeated futile attempts to marry the man with whom she has cast her lot are exciting considerable sympathy among those with whom romantic escapades find favor. This particular affair, like all others of its class, possesses phases of absurdity and aspects of real pathos. In most respects, it is true, it differs very little from the ordinary elopement of the heiress and the fortune hunter, there being nothing not disgustingly commonplace in the fact that a beautiful and wealthy woman has run away with a man bankrupt in pocket and character, wholly incapable of supporting her, and determinedly averse to maintaining himself. Neither is there anything unprecedented in the fact that the woman's relatives are excessively solicitous for her welfare and the custody of the money they see drifting further and further out of their reach through the independent action of the owner, or the spectacle of her penniless companion clinging tenaciously to the fortune of his mistress and endeavoring to make secure his claim to it through the medium of priest and ring.

But there is in the affair something which appeals to the lover of fair play as almost condoning the young woman's offense, and exalting the scamp whose victim she is to the plane of an honorable man. From what has transpired through the action of the agent of the Campos family, and in other ways, since the arrival of Mile. Campos at Dover, the fact has been established beyond reasonable doubt that the young woman's voluntary flight from Paris was the result of a series of persecutions at the hands of her relatives proceeding from mercenary motives and contemplating the ultimate absorption of her fortune. Not to mince words, but to call a spade a spade, the lady by placing herself under the doubtful protection of Milevaque, alias Garboeuf, removed herself—temporarily, as least from the power of as precious a set of harpies as ever preyed upon humanity, and possibly escaped the horrors of a lunatic asylum.

The impression is fast obtaining at Dover that the young woman is deserving of sympathy, and she is receiving an abundance.
As to the wisdom of her determination to marry Milevaque or Garboeuf, the preponderance of the advice pragmatical persons would offer her if they could get the chance would be of a decidedly negative character; but from all that is known of her experience with her dear relatives, her escape, from the frying pan though it be, is regarded as providential.

REPUSED BY A STEAM FIRE ENGINE.— The masons, helpers and the laborers employed on sewers and street improvements in Rochester, N. Y., struck for $1.75 per day of nine hours' work. The strike was ordered by the local assemblies. In two or three instances non-union men employed by the contractors were driven away by the strikers. The union men comprise less than one-third of the total number of laborers.
Non-union men on jobs in the center of the city have not been molested. The intimidation and "argumentation" are confined to the outskirts. The employers have as yet taken no action. By the strike all the masons are thrown out of employment, and at least 10,000 persons will be deprived of their means of support. When the strikers visited the works of McConnell and Jones and endeavored to persuade the workmen engaged there to quit they were ordered away from the works. Failing to comply with the order, they were treated to a bath of hot water from a steam engine. The strikers then began to throw stones, injuring two men, but after two or three of them had been scalded they retreated, and soon departed for other fields.
The entire police force has been summoned to headquarters, and is in readiness to put a stop to any disturbance.

MCGLYNN AND HYACINTHE.—Removed from the Catholic Church Pere Hyacinthe's power immediately melted away. Protestants, of course, welcomed him as an enemy of the Papacy, but even they soon ceased to pay attention to the unfrocked priest, who married an American widow in 1872, and is now almost forgotten.

If Dr. McGlynn is excommunicated is it not probable that his fate will be like that of Pere Hyacinthe? Even in politics and the labor movement will he not cease to be an important figure so soon as he ceases to be a Catholic priest?—N. Y. Sun.

The conduct of the Indian princes who are visiting London is sometimes rather extraordinary. For instance, one of them is the terror of all the waiters at the hotel where he resides, for he very facetiously obliges his attendants to finish all that is left on the table after each meal, and to the evident delight of His Highness, the poor fellows are rendered ill by over-eating of pats of butter and such like billous articles.

Five Hundred Dollars is the sum Dr. Pierce offers for the detection of any calomel, or other mineral poison or injurious drug, in his justly celebrated "Pleasant Purgative Pellets." They are about the size of a mustard seed, therefore easily taken, while their operation is unattended by any griping pain. Billiousness, sick-headache, bad taste in the mouth, and jaundice, yield at once before these "little gaunts." Of your druggist.

OFFICE ALEXANDRIA GAS WORKS.

Rooms Nos. 3 and 5 Market Building, Alexandria, Va., May 12, 1887.

In consequence of a change in the office of Superintendent of Gas, I shall not be able to grant that indulgence which I have heretofore extended. The gas therefore will be closed off of all who may be delinquent, without respect of person, on the 25th instant (May). The end of the fiscal year occurs this month, and I am obliged to settle.
I hope you will respond to this appeal by calling at the office and paying up.
